CARIBOU POWER PLANT NOW IN OPERATION

Special Parties View Completed Project

Belden (Plumas county) — The throwing of a torrent of mountain water into the Caribou power-house of the Great Western Power Company near here, started for the first time a surge of 165,000 volts of electrical energy toward the San Francisco bay region, 186 miles distant. Mortimer Fleishhacker, president of the company, and many prominent citizens who had come from San Francisco, Sacramento and other points on a special train, witnessed the opening of the big plant.

The project, which is the first unit to be completed of a $200,000,000 hydro-electric programme outlined by the company, is destined to close the company's five steam plants in the State and save an approximate total of 1,350,000 barrels of oil a year.

Opening of the project means that the old Caribou trail, worn deep and wide by the pioneers of the old bonanza days, will teem with life again after having been a quiet deer track for many years. The narrow gauge railroad runs along an old placer ditch.

Lake Almanor, the power source, is said by company experts to be the largest reservoir in the world used for the purpose. It has an ultimate capacity of 1,250,000 acre feet of water.

The opening of the project harnesses a new giant of 59,000 horsepower to the power appliances of the great California valleys and the bay region. Building of the plant occupied 23 months and the cost was $15,500,000. An average force of 2000 men were employed in the construction work.

BIG AIR LINER STRIKES TREE

Plane Crashes 50 Feet to Ground at Take-off.

Milwaukee—The greatest plane ever built in America, a mammoth $75,000 flying liner with shower baths and luxurious accommodations for 26 passengers, crashed to the ground here on taking-off for its maiden flight.

Alfred W. Lawson, designer and builder; the pilot, John Wilcox, and two Milwaukee newspaper men were in the plane, but escaped unhurt.

The plane was intended for commercial purposes and transcontinental flights. Lawson had dreamed of putting scores of these big ships into service and of building even bigger and better sky liners.

This was the first of the dream fleet. It has a capacity of three tons of freight or mail, a wing spread of 124 feet, a body sixty feet long. It is propelled at 120 miles an hour by three Liberty motors aggregating 1200 horsepower.

When the plane began to ascend the pilot started to bank the giant car and struck the tip of a tree with a wing. The airplane swung around, struck and broke a telegraph pole and went smashing down.

Lawson estimated the damage at $10,000. He said the machine would be ready again in two weeks. He is still determined to carry out his ideas of the transcontinental freight and passenger service.

UNDERGROUND RIVER FOUND

Oroville—An underground river whose supply throws a water gusher estimated at from twenty-six to twenty-seven hundred gallons a minute, sufficient to water at least 1000 acres of orchard land, has been struck by the Citrus Land Syndicate on the red hills just west of Oroville. At an expense of $10,000 the syndicate has just completed a well which has pierced the channel at a 625-foot level.

The channel is believed to be a branch of the Feather River.

GERMANY YIELDS TO TERMS OF ALLIES

Germans Agree to Pay Sum of $6,750,000,000

Berlin—Germany has accepted the allied ultimatum. The Reichstag has by vote yielded to the final allied demands and agreed to fulfill the terms of the treaty of Versailles "to the capacity" of the nation.

Dr. Wirth, Centrist leader, finally succeeded in forming a coalition cabinet, composed of Centrists, majority Socialists and Democrats, which, confronted by grave necessity speedily decided acceptance of the ultimatum was the only course. In making this announcement to the Reichstag the new Chancellor asked for immediate decision and the government was sustained.

The allied ultimatum required a "yes" or "no" reply. The ultimatum was to expire May 12.

The total sum Germany is called on to pay is $6,750,000,000; disarmament must be carried out in accordance with the treaty, and the trial of war criminals must be put into effect. Numerous other important terms will be enforced.

Non-compliance with the ultimatum would have subjected Germany to the occupation of the Ruhr and whatever other measures were deemed advisable.

The new cabinet is generally regarded as a makeshift, largely unrepresentative, but good enough to accept the ultimatum.

BRITISH TERMS TO IRELAND

Island Must Be United to Accept Offer.

Dublin—A most important peace proposal was placed in the hands of the Sinn Fein leaders a few days ago in which the British government made its maximum offer for a settlement. As conditions to the offer, the north and south must accept it as a final settlement and they must work together as a united Ireland.

The main points in the proposal follow:

Full fiscal autonomy, including control of customs, excises and income taxes, will be granted.

The Irish government will have full control of its judiciary.

It will have full control of its police.

It will have all the rights possessed by any other self-governing member of the British empire.

The annual tribute of £18,000,000 (normally about $90,000,000) will be abandoned.

Arrangements for defense by the Army and Navy are left open for discussion. It will probably be on a basis of having British troops garrison Ireland as protection against foreign invasion, but they will not be allowed to operate or suppress domestic disorder in Ireland, except at the request of the Irish Government. The model for this plan is the relationship of United States federal troops to the American states.

It is asserted on highest authority that this plan has the approval of Prime Minister Lloyd George, who is willing to grant all points, but only to a united Ireland and only on condition that the offer is accepted as final and not as an installment to a larger demand in the future.

The Sinn Fein leaders are said to be favorably disposed to the plan, but their difficulty is that they have led their followers to expect full independence.

WRIGHT BILL IS SIGNED

California Measure Will Aid in Enforcing Volstead Act.

Sacramento—Governor William D. Stephens in signing Assemblyman T. M. Wright's prohibition enforcement bill, which adopts for the State of California the provisions of the Volstead act enacted by Congress, declared "California would have failed in its constitutional obligations had it not enacted this law."

The Governor issued the following statement, in part:

"The prohibition enforcement act, known as the Wright law, which I have this day signed, provides for the enforcement by State administrative agencies, to wit, by the State courts and law officers of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and of the legislation of Congress enforcing it under the Wright act, California will enforce the Volstead Act as it is now or as it may be modified from time to time. If Congress should repeal the Volstead act and enact no other enforcement law, then there would be no law for California to enforce."

Here's a Real Argument For Philippine Independence

A Typical Philippine Homestead

The United States isn't the only country that has homesteaders—those enterprising pioneers who leave thickly populated districts and take their families into virgin territory to create homes for themselves. The Philippine islands have thousands of thrifty homesteaders.

The above photograph shows a picture of a Christian Filipino homesteader and his family near Pikit, Cotabato province, Mindanao, P. I. Five years ago he was a cab driver working for low wages at Cebu, a thickly populated city. He went into the then wilderness of Mindanao, planted hemp and cocoanuts, paid for his land and has become wealthy. Thousands of similar instances could be cited. One Mindanao homesteader is worth $200,000.

The Philippine government is encouraging the immigration of Filipinos from the thickly populated sections into Mindanao. This is the second largest of the islands of the archipelago. It is still sparsely settled, although it is one of the richest and most productive islands in the world. Many Americans have established plantations there and become rich.

Filipinos are using the stories of the many successful Filipino homesteaders as an argument for independence. They make the point that a people that can go out into a tropical wilderness with no capital save their patience, perseverence and energy and win homes for themselves, have the necessary stamina to run their own affairs.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY TO BE OF HIGH ORDER

COME ON! LET'S GO!
THE SENIOR SHOW!

The annual high school show si to be given tonight and tomorrow night, May 13 14- at the grammar school auditorium. The students have chosen "The American Citizen" as their production. It is a story of the financial and matrimonial complications gotten into by a young lawyer on account of an eratic will and a crooked partner.

The part of the young lawyer is admirably taken by Harold Ouimet; his trustworthy partner by Raymond Hulsman; while the crooked partner is well carried off by Melvin Cairns. Bert Matteson, as office boy, affords a good laugh to every one. The other male parts are taken by Leslie Cairns, Irving Townsend, John Pardee nd Verne Sawyer.

Helen Lumb impersonates Beatrice, an English maiden, unusually well. Margaret Blaine, the pretty American rival of Beatrice for the young lawyer's affections, tho disappointed in love, is anything but disappointing to the audience. Thelma Wei mer as aunt Carola goes thru many trials and finally emerges with a lemon, namely the crooked partner, Brown. Marion Everetts as Lady Bunn and Marie Biel as the maid put the finishing touches on this superb cast.

Miss Vandine Putnam as coach is giving the troupe a thoro drill and is deserving of much credit for her work.

Monday evening the Blues, i. e., the men guarantors of the recent Chautauqua, banqueted the Reds, the lady guarantors as the winners of the contest in the sale of tickets. Mrs. Roy Miller served the supper at the Hyde Cafeteria and all present enjoyed a very pleasant evening, following their strenuous labors in the good cause.

Geo. E. Hyde received a message Wednesday that Mrs. Ralph Hyde has scarlet fever. She remained with relatives at Galva, Ill., while Mr. Hyde visited New York and other eastern markets. Confronted with a serious situation owing to the influx of hundreds of unemployed to this city from all parts of the west, Fresno has found it necessary to formulate plans by which the unemployment plan may be handled.

Farmers of the entire county are planning for a drive in the early spring which it is hoped will result in eradication of squirrels in Contra Costa county. The Board of Supervisors has authorized County Horticultural Commissioner V. G. Stevens to purchase a carload of poison to cost $1000, which will be sold to farmers in small lots. The poison will be placed in all sections of the county.

Preparatory to opening the summer drive against squirrels in the foothills, several meetings are scheduled by Visalia county horticultural commissioner's office for April. The government biological survey will poison all lands in the government reserve at the same time county authorities make their drive in the foothills and mountains of Tulare, Fresno and Kern counties.

Slavery and Freedom

In slave days an old negro came to California and bought a piece of land on what is now Hamiliton avenue, near Campbell. The story has it that he had bargained with his master, a kind-hearted man, to buy his freedom at the original purchase price. He worked years, saved, and sent back the money, which was lost or stolen en route. Undiscouraged, he saved and sent the amount again, and died free, prosperous and respected.

The story, as an example of trust and faithfulness, has in it much of beauty. In a sense, too, it is typical of the things of everyday.

The average man is, we might say, a slave Our master is the World, which says, "Work!"—and work we must. We get shelter and "board and clothes" indirectly, in the form of coin. Also, our master, being kind-hearted, gives the average man a chance to buy his freedom. But we can't do it by spending all our coin for board and clothes and incidentals—we'll die slaves if we do.

Freedom comes by saving. To the question, "How much shall we spend?" there is only one answer. That answer is, "A little less than we make." The smaller the income, the greater the need of self-denial—it's a prosy matter of plodding along, up hill and down hill, through good luck and bad luck. As a source of inspiration, here is something worth pondering over: Statistics show that less than five men in a hundred are financially independent in old age—that is, are free. These figures throw on our topic a strong light. That light focuses with a million candle power right on the door of this bank and the path that leads to the Savings Account window.

SCHOOL BOARDS PREPARE FOR GROWTH

The C. U. H. S. board met Saturday and elected officers for the year, M. A. Ross, president, and R. G. Archibald, clerk. The recently elected Campbell Union Grammar school board also organized, with A. J. Conner, president, and C E. DeSelle, clerk.

The two boards then met in joint session, with a committee appointed at the last meeting of the Improvement Club, to consider propositions for the housing of the two schools.

The high school outgrew its quarters two years ago and accommodations and equipment are becoming more and more inadequate. Campbell alone has completely filled the grammar school and the consolidation of the districts presents another problem. But when both of these schools are properly provided for and in running order the children of this section of the state will have opportunities second to none, and this community will grow in wealth and population.

Until this is accomplished, however, every one must get behind the two boards and think, talk and act new schools.

They met on the apron of a long bridge and the big car refused to give an inch, tho there was plenty of room. Mrs. Atkinson's heart threatened to permanently stay in her throat.—Ceres Courier.

Uncle Walt's Story

SPARING THE ROD

"As I came past Jimuelson's house this morning," said the assessor, "I saw him applying a buggy-whip to his fifteen-year-old boy with a zeal worthy a better cause. I think a man should be arrested and punished for such an offense."

"There are many arguments for and against corporal punishment," observed the village patriarch, "and those arguments have been handed back and forth for something like two thousand years, and the question is as far from being settled, at the hour of going to press, as it was when Caesar double-crossed the Rubicon.

"I believe that every man must be his own judge about the management of his family. Jimuelson strikes me as an excellent citizen, and he should be a successful parent. If he finds it necessary to wear out a buggy-whip on his heir, I have no doubt that the provocation is sufficient. If his policy is wrong he is pretty sure to realize it before long and change his tactics; meanwhile outsiders have no reason to butt in, and the idea of calling the police is perfectly ridiculous.

"My father was an old-fashioned man who believed that an ounce of birch was better than a ton of education. He kept a small sapling behind the kitchen door and applied it to my person whenever I violated the by-laws governing our happy home. I think he probably carried his theory to extremes; whipping me became a sort of dissipation with him. But I am willing to admit that his treatment did me good, and I can't imagine what would have become of me but for it.

"My mother believed in moral suasion, and used to plead and argue with me, but I can't remember that her tender eloquence ever prevented me from breaking into a melon patch or fishing in forbidden waters. Her method probably would have been successful in many cases. There are boys who are responsive to such appeals, but I was headstrong as a government mule and when I wanted to do something it took more than gentle counsel to head me off.

"I had a profound respect for that sapling behind the door. It always seemed to be quivering with impatience to get at me, and my father regarded it with loving glances. It used to mystify me how he heard of everything I did. There was no such a thing as concealing a crime or misdemeanor from him.

"I'd swipe a few apples from a farmer's orchard, for instance, and would be willing to make an affidavit that nobody had seen me. I took all possible precautions against discovery. Yet in the evening, when I got home, my stern parent would meet me at the door and say, 'So you have been robbing Farmer Dofunny's orchard, hey? You are fully aware that robbing orchards does violence to the peace and dignity of the state, and is contrary to the provisions of the revised statutes. Come, therefore, and receive the punishment prescribed by Solomon and other law givers.'

"He always explained that it caused him the most poignant sorrow to pour the birch into me, but I couldn't believe in his sincerity, for his eyes sparkled with unseemly joy at such times, and if he had used the same enthusiasm when sawing wood, he'd have whacked up two or three cords in an hour.

"I don't know to this day how he found out everything I did, unless he did some quiet sleuthing with false whiskers and a dark lantern, but he always did discover everything, and when I fully realized that fact I decided to reform and became a model young man. I was so extremely good that my father couldn't dig up an excuse for chastising me, and a settled melancholy fell upon him and he pined away until he died. I'll never forget the reproachful glances he used to cast upon me, as though asking whether I considered my course honorable or generous. I got into the habit of being good, and have never been able to break away from it."

A real pioneer of California, one of the gold-seekers of 1849, Dr. James L. Cogswell, founder of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and one of the most prominent Masons in the Golden West, died last week at his home in Decoto, Alameda county, at the age of 90.

A deer head, with nineteen points on one horn, grouped into a bunch resembling the back of a porcupine, and the other horn containing but four points, is the prize record for deer heads. The freak head was found by S. Thomas of Colgate. It is believed the deer was killed by a mountain lion as the body was fresh when found.
